over the past three decades studies investigating heritage speaker's linguistic competencies have shown time and again that despite being L1 or 2L1 native speakers of their home language, their outcomes display variation across a wide spectrum of differences as compared to each other, other types of bilinguals as well as their monolingual peers. Studies have traditionally used mostly behavioral methodologies rooted in adjacent established fields, e.g. L1 acquisition, adult L2 acquisition, offering in addition to documenting and describing their performance important insights for linguistic theory and challenges related to home minority language maintenance, contact, policy, and more. A bird's eye view makes it clear that the methodologies one uses to tap into their linguistic knowledge areas, if not more, are important.

than the phenomena under investigation especially in light of how their unique experiences with their heritage and other languages are present across a continuum
