the world is a complex place and this complexity is an obstacle to our attempts to explain predict and control it in power and influence richard corry investigates the assumptions that are built into the reductive method of explanation the method whereby we study the components of a complex system in relative isolation and use the information so gained to explain or predict the behaviour of the complex whole he investigates the metaphysical presuppositions built into the reductive method seeking to ascertain what the world must be like in order that the method could work carry argues that the method assumes the existence of causal powers that manifest causal influence a relatively unrecognised ontological category of which forces are a paradigm example the success of the reductive method therefore is an argument for the existence of such causal influences the book goes on to show that adding causal influence to our ontology gives us the resources to solve some traditional problems in the metaphysics of causal powers laws of nature causation emergence and possibly even normative ethics what results then is not just an understanding of the reductive method but an integrated metaphysical worldview that is grounded in an ontology of power and influence
